

Carrington 1; All Nations 9

In the greatest swatfest seen on the local grounds this year, the All Nation team yesterday afternoon cinched the game in the third inning with five runs. It was all clean hitting, with hardly an error chargeable to the Carrington fielders. The visitors batted around and the famous Carrie was put out twice during the third inning. Rowe threw for the locals until the sixth, when Carlson went in and held the hitting down to a minimum.

The All Nation team is a fast bunch—of a negro, Jap, Chink, Indians, Greek, two white men and a female—Carrie, the some roaster. A female umpire was also a novelty. Several brilliant plays were made by the visitors, two plays by the second baseman in picking up hot liners being particularly good. Carrie, as first basewoman, plays real ball and asked no odds on account of her sex. After the third inning, Carrington at no time showed evidence of being able to win. The attending crowd was large.

The evening game was played by "electric" lights, the electricity being drawn from gasoline cans. The ball need look like a musk-melon, and as our boys were not used to this kind of game of course they lost. The score by innings follows:

All Nats	4	0	0	0	0	1	4	0	9
