

All Nations 10, Horton 0.

The last game with crack teams was played Wednesday afternoon. Horton will see teams in the same class as their own boys from now on. Manager Lawler has endeavored to show the Horton folks some real ball players and has certainly succeeded. John Donaldson, the great colored pitcher that John McGraw, manager of New York Giants, said he would give $50,000 for if he was white, was a puzzle to the home boys, but they hit Ragged-Jacket hard. They have had no practice for two weeks. Some new faces were seen in the line-up and all played good ball.

Game played May 3, 1916 at Horton, KS
