

THE DONALDSON NETWORK

johndonaldson.bravehost.com

Date	Location	Win	Loss	Tie	Strikeouts	No K Total Known
Sept 1, 1912	LeMars, IA	1	0	0	19	0

- LeMars (IA) Globe Post September 2, 1912;
- LeMars (IA) Globe Post August 26, 1912;
- LeMars (IA) Globe Post August 29, 1912;
- LeMars (IA) Semi-Weekly Sentinel September 3, 1912 p1 c3;
- LeMars (IA) Semi-weekly Sentinel August 27, 1912 p1 c3;
- Akron (IA) Register August 29, 1912 p1 c3

Fans who took in the game on the home grounds Sunday afternoon saw the real thing in the national pastime. While the LeMars team were defeated by the All-Nations, it was no runaway game and the Duke's Mixture aggregation knew that there had been a game somewhere in this vicinity. There is no discounting the fact that the All-Nations are ball players. To begin with, the colored "gemmen" by the name of Donaldson, who is touted to hail from Cuba, is some ball twirler. He has a curve as wide as his smile and the steam of a bull moose. Only nineteen strikeouts to his credit in this game. He might have done better but the day was warm. Gaspar, Nelson and Cadwin were the only ones to come near connecting with his elusive offerings. Our old reliable "Snakes" Trafford started in for LeMars in the box, but the mixtures have been raised in a stinky elm grove and took to his spit ball, so Harry Gaspar, who is home from Cincinnati, where he has been twirling for the Reds, went into the box. That ended the scoring, but the three already gathered served to win for the visitors. LeMars never played a better game and lost on the hits in the early part of the game and their inability to connect with the dark ball. Star catches were made by Wernli, Ewaldt and Cadwin, that lifted the fans off the bleachers. Only best of fielding kept the score down.