

The game between the All nations and the Union Giants at Slayton on the last day of the fair, in which the Giants were trimmed 12 to 2, brought just a little joy to the heart of the writer of this item. For months some of the wise heads, those fellows who know everything about baseball have been proclaiming that these games are "fixed" and that the teams just played a close game to entertain the crowd. That Saturday game has upset their ideas.

Game played September 9, 1916 at Slayton, MN
