

The old gang of ball tossers sporting the Kansas City unies, this year sure look good from here. They didn't show much Sunday, simply because the opposition wasn't strong enough. They went over in Kansas to the Aristos' pretty little park and froliced through nine innings with the Millers, beating them 12 to 3. They had a good time except league. On April 9th, they defeated the strong Aristos, local semi-pro team by the score of 10 to 4. The Aristos are rated as the strongest semi-pro team in the two Kansas Cities. On Saturday and Sunday,

Games played April 9, 1922 at Kansas City, KS