

Thursday afternoon of last week the All Nations team, a traveling club of colored gent's from Kansas City, met the Corning team on the local diamond, and it was really the best game we have had. Almost perfect baseball was put up by both teams, and Corning people were proud of the fine showing our boys made against the All Nations aggregation, though we lost by a score of 2 to 0. The two scores made in this game were both in the eighth inning—just one of those little slips that determine airtight games and the two runs came in at the same time.

The All Nations club has John Donaldson, one of the greatest pitchers in baseball, and he officiated in the box against Corning. His color excludes him from the big leagues. He is certainly a wonderful pitcher. The fact that Daniels was pitching almost as good a quality of ball for the Corning boys made the game a really great one. The visiting club also had Joe Mendez in its lineup, and Ty Cobb is authority for the statement that Mendez is the fastest man in base ball. It was a game worth seeing.

Games played June 29, 1922 at Corning, IA